

THE FAR-FLUNG ADVENTURES OF BBS'S DOUBLE FANTASY MERCHANDISE!

Thanks to Lyn Vaughan, Manager of the Visitors' Centre, John Lennon fans in faraway Japan are now proudly sporting the Bermuda Botanical Society's Double Fantasy t-shirts, and recently the following e-mail arrived from Yoko Hansen:

We are a non-profitable & voluntary group based in Japan, whose members are mainly John Lennon fans. According to myth, John Lennon's last album was named after the flower he saw at the Botanical Garden in Bermuda and we started searching for this illusive flower about 20 months ago. Our aim, when we succeed in finding or recovering this flower, is to start up a campaign for "Love & Peace" and make this flower the symbol of this cause. For example, our first phase of this campaign would be to encourage local children to plant the "Double Fantasy" bulbs at every elementary school all over Japan.

The parcel has arrived! Our captain, Shingo Yagyu (the guy in the middle) and his staff.

Let's try them on! Small, Medium & Large from left to right.

Sending them out to other members all over Japan. All Shingo's staff are working hard!
